

~~TOP SECRET~~

6 November 1957

Copy No. 138

3.5(c)

3.3(h)(2)

CURRENT INTELLIGENCE BULLETIN

DOCUMENT NO. S
NO CHANGE IN CLASS.
1. UNCLASSIFIED
CLASS. CHANGED TO: 10 2010
NEXT REVIEW DATE: 2010
AUTH: HR 70-2
DATE: 1-4-80 REVIEWER:

OFFICE OF CURRENT INTELLIGENCE
CENTRAL INTELLIGENCE AGENCY

~~TOP SECRET~~

Approved for Release: 2019/12/10 C03150405

Approved for Release: 2019/12/10 C03150405

SDRAB

CONTENTS

OK

1. COMMUNIST OFFICIALS CLAIM KHRUSHCHEV'S POSITION WEAKENED [ ] (page 3).

no

2. TYURA TAM MISSILE TEST RANGE RESUMES ACTIVITY [ ] (page 4).

OK

3. TURKISH-SYRIAN BORDER SITUATION [ ] (page 5).

no

4. ISRAEL SEEKS NATO GUARANTEE [ ] (page 6).

OK

5. FRAGILE COALITION HANDICAPS NEW FRENCH PREMIER [ ] (page 7).

OK

6. PERU SUSPENDS CONSTITUTIONAL GUARANTEES IN TWO PROVINCES [ ] (page 8).

1. COMMUNIST OFFICIALS CLAIM KHRUSHCHEV'S POSITION WEAKENED

Comment on:

[Redacted] [Redacted] Khrushchev's political future is in jeopardy.
since the dismissal of Zhukov. These opinions contrast with the confidence expressed by Soviet officials on similar occasions in the past that changes in the Soviet hierarchy have strengthened the regime. The views on the Zhukov ouster, probably intended to reach Western governments, may be designed to convey the idea that it is in the interest of the West to refrain from any actions which could help a Stalinist faction to oust Khrushchev.

[Redacted]
Zhukov had been Khrushchev's strongest supporter and that his removal had left Khrushchev dangerously isolated. [Redacted]

[Redacted] Khrushchev would be the next Soviet leader to fall, probably within the next few months.

[Redacted] [Redacted] Zhukov's support of Khrushchev against Beria in 1953, again in December 1956 during the Hungarian crisis, and also during the June 1957 shake-up of the presidium.

[Redacted] Bulganin, Voroshilov, and Suslov--none [Redacted]
[Redacted] considered firm supporters of Khrushchev--may have cooperated to induce him to oust Zhukov. [Redacted]

[Redacted] Bulganin has always considered Zhukov a personal opponent.

Yugoslav Communists have contended for some time that Stalinist elements, whom they seem to fear more than Khrushchev, continue to threaten his position and policies. Gomulka may now subscribe to this belief. [Redacted]

2. TYURA TAM MISSILE TEST RANGE RESUMES ACTIVITY

Comment on:

The Tyura Tam Missile Test Range again was active on 5 November, less than 46 hours after the launching of the second Soviet earth satellite.

It is believed that the 5 November activity represented practice rather than an actual launching attempt. Such practice this soon after the launching of Sputnik II on 3 November could indicate plans for another launching in the near future.

3. TURKISH-SYRIAN BORDER SITUATION

Comment on:

--	--

Reports received in late October that Turkish troops were being withdrawn from the border area have not been confirmed. The Turks recently prohibited entry into the area near Diyarbakir--a city about 65 miles north of the border and site of a major Turkish air force base--and refused to allow the American air attaché to enter without the approval of the minister of the interior.

Meanwhile, the Syrian radio and press continue to allege that Turkish and unidentified planes are overflying Syrian territory. On 4 November, Radio Moscow charged that "hundreds" of Turkish tanks are moving toward the Syrian border and warned that danger still threatens Syria. [redacted]

4. ISRAEL SEEKS NATO GUARANTEE

Comment on:

--	--

--

The Israelis presumably are aware of the difficulties in getting NATO protection.

Israel's aim at this time therefore may be merely to continue to impress upon Western countries the idea that serious consideration should be given Israel's interests. Should the Middle East situation deteriorate further, the Israelis probably would quickly seek a specific French commitment of support against the threat posed by Soviet-armed Syria and Egypt. These tactics are complementary to Tel Aviv's previously reported approach to the United States for heavy arms.

5. FRAGILE COALITION HANDICAPS NEW FRENCH PREMIER

Comment on:

Premier Gaillard's ability to take effective action on France's pressing problems will be limited because his cabinet includes exponents of the widely divergent views of all the nonextremist parties in the assembly. Even though the assembly gave him a substantial vote, interparty frictions are expected to re-emerge quickly on a number of issues. Gaillard has already moved to make the parties recognize their responsibility, however, by threatening to resign if any of them bolt his coalition.

The immediate problem is to check France's inflationary trend and to halt the drain on the country's internal resources and foreign exchange. Gaillard did not present a detailed program, but intends to demand special economic powers. He may start by imposing stringent import restrictions since he believes France's unfavorable balance of payments is the nub of its economic crisis. He apparently intends to seek new taxation and drastic cuts in government spending to buttress the government's request for foreign aid.

New taxes and budget cuts will be the critical issues, because the Independents oppose additional taxation, and the Socialists will be reluctant to go along with any curtailment of social welfare measures. Current French prosperity, moreover, has tended to hide the seriousness of the financial crisis and the necessity of sacrifices from the French public.

Gaillard is expected to continue the Algerian policy advocated by his two immediate predecessors. Reappointment of Robert Lacoste as minister for Algeria was probably an attempt to assuage fears of rightist deputies who now may be willing to accept the basic statute for Algeria, but there is growing Socialist rank-and-file opposition to its limited scope.

6. PERU SUSPENDS CONSTITUTIONAL GUARANTEES IN TWO PROVINCES

Comment on:

[Redacted]

Peru suspended constitutional guarantees in two provinces on 5 November because of a clash between workers and the armed forces at Ilo, the southern port being built as an outlet for the new $200,000,000 American-owned copper industry at Toquepala.

Serious unrest in the Ilo-Toquepala area began with a strike declared on 23 October to support demands that the company return a fired workman to his job and dismiss all the high executives of the company. The government on 25 October had declared the strike illegal and sent a destroyer escort and troops with tear gas to the area to support its decision.

Labor troubles in Peru have increased markedly over the past 18 months. Current strikes at northern sugar plantations and on the Central Railway may have strengthened the government's determination to reassert its authority, weakened by labor's successful demand of 18 October for rescission of a decree limiting the freedom of labor organization.

[Redacted]